Whitening Effect (Mushroom Tyrosinase Activity Assay)

The L-tyrosine oxidation activity of mushroom tyrosinase was evaluated via measurements in the increase in absorbance at 432 nm. In this evaluation, the reaction was initiated via the addition of the mushroom tyrosinase at a final concentration of 3.33 nM (430mg/L) to a 200 μ L solution containing specified concentrations of L-tyrosine in 50 mM sodium phosphate buffer(pH 7.0).

Analysis of DPPH assay (radical-scavenging activity)

The free radical scavenging activities of the rice callus extracts were measured by the DPPH method proposed by Brand-Williams et al. Each callus extract was dissolved and diluted in 50 % methanol. 1 mL of the callus extract was added to 2 mL of DPPH(2,2-diphenyl-1-picrylhydrazyl) 50 mg in 100 mL methanol solution. The mixture was incubated for 30 min at room temperature and then the absorbance was measured at 517 nm.

The DPPH radical scavenging activity was calculated according to the following equation:
DPPH radical scavenging activity (%) = [(A0-A1)/A0] × 100

Where A0 was the absorbance of the control, and A1 was the absorbance with the test compound.
